Description

The spacious wildlife ranges and large aviaries found in the wildlife enclosure of the Bavarian Forest National Park provide us with over 30-species of mountain-forest animals to photograph, within a stunning, natural environment. The population includes grey wolves and brown bears, as well as animals re-introduced to their native habitats, such as Eurasian lynx and black stork.

We will also have an opportunity to photograph the endangered European bison, deer, wild boars, and river otters. The selection of birds includes eagle owls, Ural owls and grouse. Over the course of three days in the field, we will enjoy numerous opportunities to capture spectacular images of Europe's top predators and endangered wildlife in natural forest settings. And, with the help of top wildlife pro' Chris Weston, we'll ensure you return home with images you'll be proud of.

We've also made this adventure easy to enjoy with an inclusive package that includes your flights (from Stansted), transfers and en-suite hotel accommodation in private room (no single supplements). In all, four days of truly spectacular wildlife photography adventure.

This workshop is run in conjunction with Mountain Paradise Ltd (MPL). All money paid by you for the air holiday package shown is ATOL protected by the Civil Aviation Authority.
